DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Thomas et al. (USPN 5,906,459).

Thomas et al. discloses laser assisted milling whereby at least one laser beam is directed onto the workpiece. The laser beam(s) are directed onto the workpiece immediately upstream of the milling tool, behind the workpiece or parallel to the workpiece. The laser heated zone is directed towards the chamfered edge of the cutting zone; heating a zone immediately in front of the cutting edge and moved to advance the heating zone at the same speed and in the same direction as the cutting edge.

(abstract, figures, col. 1-3)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Thomas et al., as stated above and further in view of Wu et al. (USPN 5,413,439) and Aubin et al. (USPN 6,196,775).

Thomas et al. does not teach a machining tool and a laser head mounted on a tool mount or a chip spray.

Wu et al. discloses a universal spindle head for a machine tool. Figures 8 and 9 show differing embodiments which have two machining tools mounted on the mount. (abstract, figures 8-9, col. 2, col. 6) It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use two machine tools mounted on the same mount, as taught by Wu et al. in the Thomas et al. system because it more make the machining process more efficient.

Aubin et al. discloses a system for the extraction of machining chips. A nozzle with gas and a vacuum assembly is used to remove chips. (abstract, figures, col. 2) It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use chip removal, as taught by Aubin et al. in the Thomas et al. system because of the improved quality of the finished product.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 8-11 are allowed.

Claims 2-4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art does not teach the machine tool and laser separation or the use of digital thermometer in the machine tool handle.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See US PTO-892.
